NOT A SUGAR CONSPIRACY.

While Mr. Spreckels is devoting all the skill and ability which has made his life remarkable, to defeat the Annexationist cause, the Louisville Courier-Journal is using columns of editorial space to prove that he is the moving power in the "planters conspiracy" to bring these islands into the United States. The more desperate Mr. Spreckels's efforts are to break up the Provisional Government the more strenuous are Mr. Watterson's attempts to prove that but for the Sugar King, that Government would not last a day. It would be hard to find in the domain of topsy-turvydom which Gilbert and Sullivan bring to view under the flashes of their wit, a more amusing and bizarre performance.

Quoting the Star's statement that if Mr. Spreckels and the planters had really been back of a political conspiracy to get the sugar bounty through annexation they would not have deferred their revolution until all bounty prospects had been wiped out by the election of a Democratic President and Congress, the Courier-Journal says:

The Star is edited too far away from home. Consider the situation.

According to Mr. Thurston the "gains" to be credited to the "Reciprocity Treaty" with Hawaii were:

Increase in the value of sugar property owned by Americans, $23,235,100.
Profits made by Americans on sugar, $18,830,855.

Commissions paid to American agents, $30,000,000.
All these benefits, bounties and subsidies, paid by the American consumer to the American speculators in Hawaii, were abolished by putting sugar on the free list.

Why did not the conspirators act promptly? Because they preferred to see first how the American people would take concerning the tariff, reciprocity and bounties. They wished to know for a certainty whether there was more money in a reciprocity treaty, or in annexation.

As time went on the indications were that the Republicans would elect the President and Congress, in which event the Islands were to ask annexation and a bounty. Under the plea of glory and more land it was thought no one would object to treating Americans in Hawaii as Americans in Louisiana were treated. But the campaign, even before the election, changed the whole situation. It became evident from the course of the debate that though the Democrats should succeed, and should even put a tax on sugar, they would never consent to renew the so-called reciprocity treaty with Hawaii. In other words, Democratic success meant death both to the tariff and to reciprocity.

Manifestly, after the election and the overwhelming popular support given to the Democratic party, there was only one chance for the Hawaiian speculators to break into the Treasury, and that was to secure annexation before the inauguration of Cleveland. Once in the Union it would have the same chance as Louisiana, and more they could not expect under the circumstances.

That scheme failed, but not because no effort was made for success. It failed because there was a revolt of American opinion.

That is theory. Now for fact.

There were few signs of a revolt or of the occasion for one until the Queen tried a coup d'etat. This was on January 14 and 15. When it became plain that she wanted to violate the constitution, and force a despotic charter upon the people, the intelligent, business, mercantile and property-owning classes rose and cast her out. The only men who objected, aside from the Royalist faction, were the sugar planters. They advised delay and compromise on the ground that their business would be ruined by a policy which would make them subject to the anti-contract and anti-Chinese labor laws of the United States. Far from being "conspirators" and Annexationists, they were so alarmed at the outlook that it required personal assurance from the leaders of the new movement of a special labor clause in the proposed Annexation treaty before they would cease their protests, and even then they were in a doubtful mood and were willing to welcome an arrangement with the Queen by which annexation would have been given up on the one hand and the new constitution idea on the other. Some of them became Annexationists afterwards, but this was because they had as great a stake in good government as they had in sugar stocks.

What evidence is there in these locally undisputed facts of a cane-growers' conspiracy? To sum up, sugar men did not organize the revolt, they did not lead it, they did not enter in any appreciable way the personnel of the new Government, and, except in the matter of isolated planters here and there, they did not join in the appeal for union with America. All these matters were administered and carried on by the general community of the city of Honolulu and they continue in such hands, to the intense displeasure and hostility of the Sugar King himself.

The Courier-Journal says that the Star is published too far away from home. "Home," we presume, is Kentucky, and while Kentucky is an excellent state, renowned for blooded stock, pure whisky and fair women, it does not afford much of a vantageground in the discussion of the domestic politics of Hawaii. If it did, such an intelligent paper as the Courier-Journal would not be found among the absurd commentators who connect the event of January 17th with the greed of speculation. Our uprising had no more to do with that than the desire of flag-makers to create business in gridiron hunting had with the events of July 4, 1776.

The native Hawaiians will do themselves a service by turning a deaf ear to the tricksters who tell them, from time to time, that the ex-Queen is to be restored. The fact is, these politicians do not believe their own weird tales, getting them up merely to the end that natives may be kept, through fear, from joining the annexation party. Every Hawaiian who has read Commissioner Blount's remarks to the women of the Patriotic League and who has studied the text of his instructions, wherein it is said that the United States will not interfere with the domestic concerns of the Islands, ought to know that restoration at the hands of America is not to be thought of. Aside from this, the natives do not, of course, need to be told that the ex-Queen's party has no hope of reaching that result by any other agency. Why, then, should they embitter the political situation and do themselves harm by heeding the malicious counsel and believing the cheap falsehoods that are so freely proffered? They have been fooled so often by the desperate "palace gang" that they ought to begin to realize the true status of things and act accordingly. Nothing is plainer than that the era of Royalty has passed away. Will the emancipated subjects of the monarchy cling to the body of that death, or will they mount into freedom and get ready to be American citizens? It is for them to say, and the answer they give will be a measure of their wisdom and intelligence.

It may be that the bombs found a few days ago in close proximity to the center of Royalist intrigue, where they had been dropped by a fugitive native, had been made and buried by a man who is now dead. Certainly the man himself is not able to prove otherwise, and besides, the point is not material. The question is, were the bombs intended for use against the military government? That they were designed for some immediate object is a belief based upon the freshness of their fuses; and that they were intended for use against the Government is a theory which has more support than any other from the circumstances of their capture. At the very least, the discovery throws a strong suspicion upon the leaders of the lost cause which, if they are innocent, they should try to clear away by some other means than the concoction of vague romances about the late Mr. Huntsman.

If all the officials under the old regime had come out of the Low inquiry with as much credit as did Mr. Rothwell of the post office, there would have been no occasion now for uneasiness in the ex-Queen's camp. To be sure Mr. Rothwell's name was not mixed up in the matter, though the implication of the report was that the books, of which he was then in charge, had at some time or other been forced to an arbitrary balance. Unlike so many others connected with the former administration, Mr. Rothwell was able to show that the allegations made could not possibly have referred to him. Mr. Baldwin himself is an authority in Mr. Rothwell's favor on this point, and the facts leave the latter free from a suspicion which Mr. Low probably did not hold, and which attached, if at all, to some previous incumbents of the postal department.

THE Star denies that Royalist firms have been boycotted by the Annexation people and it fails to find anything in Mr. Lillie's card to lead it to modify that view. True Mr. Lillie says he has reason to think that orders have gone past his house for political reasons. Perhaps that supposition is correct and no doubt it can be matched by instances where orders have been denied Annexationist houses for the same cause. But this is not boycotting. It is merely the exercise of a private preference as to where one should do business. A trade boycott would mean an agreement by two or more persons to purchase no supplies from a given establishment and by persuasion or threats, to keep others from so purchasing. It is the non-existence of such a policy as this which leads the Star to say that the boycotting story is a canard.

THE New York World's attack upon Minister Blount and its demand for his recall may be readily accounted for. Upon the staff of the World, along with the flesh and the devil, is the gifted William Shaw Bowen, who has not liked Mr. Blount since he was repudiated, at the latter's instance, by his "friend Cleveland." While this indignant rancor, Mr. Bowen and his paper may be expected to look with a profound and "patriotic" distrust of the American Minister and all his works—even though the policy may wrong their Government, discredit their party and expose themselves to ridicule. 'Tis a mad World my masters.

COUNCIL MEETING.

A Bill in Relation to the Postal Savings Bank.

Promptly at 2 P. M. President Dole called the Council to order. The members of the cabinet and of the Executive Council were present, with the exception of Messrs. McChesney and Young.

After roll call and the reading of the minutes of last session, a petition was read from the curator of the Bishop museum asking that certain books now in the possession of the Government be transferred to that institution.

Vice-President Damon moved that before any disposition be made of Government property that a proper inventory of the same be made, and of any Government property in the hands of the museum, and that provision be made for its security in the shape of bonds or otherwise. Carried.

The Attorney-General read a petition from Peter Quinn, undergoing sentence for mayhem, asking to be pardoned on account of good behavior. Referred to Judiciary Committee.

Councilman Hatch, of the Judiciary Committee, reported favorably on the bill regulating the use of explosives and suggesting amendments thereto; also, a bill to amend act 35 of the laws of 1888 in relation to estrays, brands and marks.

The Minister of Finance read the weekly financial statement, showing the receipts, including cash on hand, to have been $68,310.13, and expenditures, $52,047.97. The total available resources of the Government were stated at $362,928.21.

Mr. Damon introduced a bill offering increased facilities to depositors who desire to make term deposits of $500 and upwards in the Postal Savings Bank, which took the usual course.

At 2:40 the Council went into executive session.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

In the Circuit Court to-day the case of Dr. A. Mauritz against J. N. Hac and others occupied Judge Cooper's entire attention, a jury having been waived. The suit was brought to quiet title to certain land on the island of Molokai. Messrs. Kenney and Monarrat are attorneys for the plaintiff, and A. Rosa, for defendant.

Might Have Been Worse.

From some unexplained reason the rope by which one of the large safes belonging to the Interior office was being hauled up the grand stairway in the Executive building yesterday afternoon, slipped through the block and the safe came down about ten feet with a run. Fortunately the width of the staircase enabled the workmen to get out of the way, and with the exception of Mr. W. H. Hoogs, who was slightly injured on the foot, and a native laborer who sustained a bruise on the leg, no one was hurt.

PERSONAL.

C. Ferguson of Ewa was in town Saturday.

H. J. Gallagher of Apakaa was in the city yesterday.

Hon. J. H. Waipulani has joined the annexation club at Kona.

Claus Spreckels and W. G. Irwin returned yesterday from Kauai.

Thomas Fraser and daughter of Oakland, Cal., are stopping at one of the hotels.

J. W. Colville, a well-known resident at Paia, Maui, is registered at a leading hotel.

George Manson, late of the Advertiser, has engaged with the Star for reportorial work.

Alex. Cornis, a Frenchman worth $30,000 died at the leper settlement last week.

Mrs. R. Kinney for Ruk, Caroline Islands, and Miss L. Wilson for Kusaie, are passengers on the Morning Star to leave Wednesday.

Tommy King, well-known as one of the old drivers of the Pantheon Stables, who joined the regular army a few weeks since, has been promoted to a corporal ship.

Trusts and Combinations.

Are unpopular. But there is one form of trust against which no one has anything to say. That is the trust which the public reposes in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the best of it is the trust is fully justified by the merit of the medicine. For, remember, HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists.

Cod Liver Oil.

It aims to cure Consumption,
Hits the Mark, too, and it
most effectually breaks up Colds,
Coughs, Hoarseness and all Throat and Lung troubles that cause this disease.

It is natural logic to conclude that if WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION OF COD LIVER OIL has power to prevent Consumption, it surely is able to cure these lesser emergencies.

This vigor-making, fat producing preparation is Absolutely Tasteless, in so far as Cod Liver Oil is concerned. All you notice is a delightful flavor of Wild Cherry and Anise.

But the purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil is there all the same. It is a great blood enricher. Best of all it is a natural food that in its stomachic effects, actually assists its own assimilation.

In Pulmonary or Bronchial troubles it is unequalled. No one doubts the value of Cod
